Answer the questions about the article by circling Y (Yes) or N (No). Count the Y's to get a total score (maximum is 22).

- Authority
  - Do the authors list their credentials? (Y N)
  - Are the authors subject matter experts? (Y N)
  - Are the authors affiliated with a relevant organization? (Y N)
  - Is the article published in a peer reviewed, scholarly or academic publication? (Y N)

- Relevance
  - Is this article directly relevant to your topic? (Y N)
  - Does the information in the article relate to the title of the article? (Y N)
  - Is information on the following present? (Y N)
    - Demographics
    - Epidemiology
    - Pathophysiology
  - Is there enough information to reproduce this study? (Y N)

- Resources used
  - Does the article cite qualified/relevant sources? (Y N)
  - Does the article address current environments (Last 5 years)? (Y N)
  - Is this a Canadian or US based article? (Y N)
  - Is the full text of the article available? (Y N)

- Analysis of the citations
  - Is the article supported with adequate and relevant evidence? (Y N)
  - Were the citations referenced “in text” appropriately? (Y N)
  - Does the article include a reference page? (Y N)
  - Is the reference page formatted according to the journal’s citation style? (Y N)

- Accuracy
  - Can you verify the information from the cited resources? (Y N)
  - Is the information based on facts and NOT on opinion? (Y N)

- Analysis of the Authors’ Written Skills
  - Does the article use correct medical terminology? (Y N)
  - Does the article have accurate grammar, spelling, punctuation? (Y N)
  - Does the article have logical organization and flow of information? (Y N)
  - Does the tone seem unbiased and free of emotion? (Y N)

Using the information above, is your assigned article a reliable resource for use in a literature review?  Yes / No
This score card was created by Sheena Bhimji-Hewitt 2018, based on a score card from Seneca Libraries

Resources used to create this score card:
Queens University Library: http://guides.library.queensu.ca/introduction-research/writing/critical
Feedback was provided by Jeffery Ho 2018